W13 Reflection

Point Total: 100

Why is this week's topic important for teamwork? (20 points)

This week we learned about personality, and we were able to present our acorn projects to the class. From the resources I studied, I learned that it is extremely beneficial for group to learn about the personalities of each member. Knowing how each person operates, and what their preferences are will facilitate the distribution of responsibilities and intra-group communication.

How do plan on contributing to the team, besides completing your tasks? (20 points)

I plan on contributing to the team this coming week by implementing all that I've learned over the course of the semester and being the best team-member and person that I can be.

How does your experience relate to other classmates' experiences? (20 points)

I'd assume that this past week's material was received differently by each member of the class, as we all possess different personalities. It was fun to watch the other groups present their acorn projects.

Tell me about what you taught someone? And what did they learn, that they didn't know before? (20 points)

My wife and I had a discussion about personality. We both agreed that learning the personalities of those with whom you associate is definitely worth the time and effort. When one understands the personality of another, they are better able understand and work well with the person.

If this was a religion class, how would you relate this week's topic to the gospel? (20 points)

Personality is a kind of difficult principle to relate to the gospel. We were all given individual personalities when we were created. It is important that we remain true to ourselves and cultivate the healthy parts of our personality, while try to reduce and eliminate the unhealthy parts.
